This section explores how her ideas intersect with the ethos of organizations and institutions that operate without profit motives.

Philosophy of Purpose: Prioritizing Human Well-being Nussbaum’s critique of profit-driven models in society is rooted in her belief that economic growth alone cannot guarantee human well-being. Instead, she advocates for institutions—educational, cultural, and social—that serve the purpose of fostering human capabilities.

- Education as a Public Good: She champions accessible, high-quality education as essential for developing individuals’ capabilities, emphasizing that education should be driven by a commitment to human development rather than profits.

- Cultural and Artistic Institutions: Nussbaum stresses the importance of supporting arts and culture as vital to human flourishing, often highlighting their role as public goods. In her view, organizations operating “not for profit” are better equipped to pursue these moral and social objectives, unencumbered by the pressures of shareholder returns or financial short-termism.

Ethics of Altruism and Social Responsibility

Nussbaum’s emphasis on empathy and compassion underscores the importance of social responsibility—principles inherent to not-for-profit organizations.

This ethical stance reinforces the notion that organizations committed to social good, operating without profit motives, are vital for a just society.

Critique of Profit-Driven Models in Society

The Limitations of Profit-Driven Education

- Commercialization of Education: She critiques the increasing privatization and commodification of education, which often prioritize revenue over equitable access and intellectual development.
- Loss

of Democratic Values: Profit motives can undermine the democratic purpose of education by turning it into a market commodity rather than a space for critical thinking and social growth.

Healthcare and Economic Incentives

Societal Implications of a Profit-Centered Economy

- Erosion of Community Values: Emphasizing individual profit can weaken social bonds and community cohesion. - Inequality and Social Fragmentation: Profit motives often exacerbate disparities, leading to social fragmentation and reduced social trust. Her critique advocates for a reorientation towards institutions motivated by public service, social justice, and human flourishing—values that underpin the “not for profit” ethos.
